LONELINESS: A Novel

By Mgr R. H. Benson

MESSRS Burns & Oates beg to draw special attention to Loneliness, Mgr Benson's last novel, which they have just published. Its subject and its treatment will make Loneliness of even greater appeal to Catholics than have been any of the author's "modern" novels.

CLOTH, SIX SHILLINGS POST FREE.

¶ The Third Impression of Mgr Benson's "Poems" is now ready. Cloth gilt, finely printed on Japon vellum, with a frontispiece in photogravure, Two Shillings & Sixpence net, postage Threepence.

MEMORIALS OF
ROBERT HUGH BENSON

By Blanche Warre Cornish, Shane Leslie and others of his friends

THIS book affords a series of simple, intimate and living impressions of Mgr Benson as he was to his friends. Mrs Warre Cornish gives an account of his earlier years and development, and has much that is significant to say of himself in his books. Mr Shane Leslie treats of his "Cambridge Apostolate"; Mr Richard Howden of the daily life at Hare Street; and the "Notes" comprise items of Bensoniana that are not the least attractive feature of a book produced on very original lines.

The illustrations are presented in a particularly handsome manner. The frontispiece is a Miniature finely reproduced in facsimile colours, and mounted upon japon vellum; while the nine other illustrations—mostly portraits, of which some are unpublished—are printed on special paper and mounted into the book.

THE WAR AND THE PROPHETS

AN EXAMINATION OF CURRENT PREDICTIONS REGARDING THIS LATTER AGE

By the Rev. Herbert Thurston, S.J.

THE book deals with a number of prophetic utterances which have been lately in circulation and which are supposed to have reference to this fateful epoch of war and calamity. Father Thurston begins his account with the flood of predictions which were revived or brought into being by the events of the Franco-Prussian war. Thus he touches incidentally upon the famous Prophecy of Orval and upon the oracles of Hermann of Lehnin, of Bartholomew Holzhauser and in more modern times of such mystics as Anna Maria Taigi and Marie Lataste. In connexion with the present war special attention is paid to the so-called Prophecy of Mayence, as well as to those attributed to Brother Johannes, the Curé d'Ars and Dom Bosco. Prognostics regarding the date of the Kaiser's downfall and the future of England also receive their due share of attention, while special chapters are devoted to the papal mottoes attributed to St Malachy, and to ancient and modern forecasts regarding Antichrist and the end of the world.

AUNT SARAH and the WAR

A TALE OF TRANSFORMATIONS

With an Appendix of Poems by G. K. Chesterton, Helen Parry Eden, Katharine Tynan and Thomas Hardy

"A VIVID little personal drama of the war."—The Times.

"That fine little book."—Daily Chronicle.

"This little book weaves together every thread of sensibility which the great struggle can awaken, and leaves us a texture which disguises its own strength by its brilliance and its lightness. There is living and convincing character in the lovers, and the motherly Aunt Sarah; and there is unforced tragedy in the heroic ending. The penetration of great issues, and the manifestation of that wonderful change which has come over the nation, are conveyed by conversational and anecdotal touches, often of an unapproachable charm. The intellect of the book is exceptional; but it is the depth of feeling that should make every reader proud and grateful."—Pall Mall Gazette.

"Witty, pathetic, and illuminating."—Public Opinion.

THE LORD MY LIGHT

By the Rev. Joseph Rickaby, S.J.

Messrs Burns & Oates have particular pleasure in announcing for early publication an important new work by Father Joseph Rickaby.

IT is hoped that this volume may achieve the same success with young men which the author's previous work, Ye are Christ's, has had with boys. The title, which is the English of the motto of the University of Oxford, Dominus illuminatio mea, shows that the addresses were originally delivered, some at Oxford, some at Cambridge, to the Catholic undergraduates of those Universities. They are now cleared, so far as might be, of local allusions, and adapted to a wider circle of readers, young and old. They are not difficult reading: still they are addressed rather to the better than to the less well educated. They aim at removing current prejudices and misconceptions concerning the Catholic Church, and at instructing the layman on points of theology that he ought to know. They may thus be helpful to converts, and to that ever-widening circle of inquirers who are curious to understand the Catholic system better at first hand.

THE SOLITARIES OF THE SAMBUCA

By Montgomery Carmichael

"THE many who were delighted with Mr Montgomery Carmichael's spiritual romance, The Life of John William Walsh, will welcome his new adventure in the same spirit which Messrs Burns & Oates have lately published in a beautifully printed volume entitled The Solitaries of the Sambuca (5s. net). Mr Casauban, a wealthy bachelor, suddenly disappears from London, and six years later is accidentally discovered by his friend, Daniel Mauldsley, the imaginary author of the book, retired from the world on a remote spur of the Apennines. Here he is leading the solitary life, to which, not to a religious order, he has a vocation: he tells Mauldsley his experiences since he has left London, and marks out a scheme of life which his great wealth, renounced for his own use, enables him to develop. At first, however, he has to go to the nearest village to Mass; here he is attacked by the people, and his refusal to give evidence against them leads to his sentence to a term of imprisonment. The gradual development of his plan and Mauldsley's share in it occupy most of the book; the latter, however, feels called upon to leave the beata solitudo, hoping to return when his self-imposed task of writing some account of the life there has been completed.

"This is a very inadequate indication of the contents of a very beautiful book. Apart from the mysticism which finds expression in its pages, it has a very special literary charm, not quite easy to define but certain to be experienced by the reader. The description of the Solitude and its natural surroundings, and of the lovely Apennine country, could only have been penned by one permeated by its beauties; few, we think, equal Mr Carmichael in conveying an impression of these, and never has he succeeded better in doing so than in this charming book."—Catholic Book Notes.

A Book of English Martyrs

By E. M. Wilmot-Buxton, F.R.Hist.S.

THIS book is an important contribution to the reading, in school or out, of Catholic boys and girls. No historical romance could be more thrilling and enthralling than these deathless stories of the great dead; and, told as they are wherever possible in the affecting words of contemporary records and letters, they breathe a spirit of faith so fervent and of spirituality so heroic that they cannot fail, as Dom Bede Camm says in his Preface, "to make children more enthusiastic lovers of their holy religion.... The book is written with knowledge and is instinct with enthusiasm."

To every detail of the format of this book great care has been given; and the publishers are proud to have secured seven notable illustrations by Mr Meredith Williams, one of which is finely reproduced in colours. There is, in addition, a decorated Title-page and Wrapper. The price is extremely low for so significant and well produced a work.

WITH A PREFACE BY DOM BEDE CAMM, O.S.B., & SEVEN ILLUSTRATIONS. CLOTH, THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

A MANUAL OF CHURCH HISTORY

By Dr Francis Xavier Funk. The Translation by Dr P. Perciballi. Revised and edited by W. H. Kent, O.S.C.

THE standard annotated edition of this important work, the fruit of many years of labour, is now ready. The English version is by Dr Perciballi, whose former translation into Italian won the special commendation of Dr Funk and his encouragement in the present undertaking. In addition to Dr Perciballi's valuable Notes are those of Father W. H. Kent, which supplement for the particular benefit of English readers the original treatment of matters affecting English and Irish history. Father Kent is also responsible for the careful revision of the English text, and this new translation is at least the rival in scholarship of the admirable French version due to the pen of M. L'Abbé Hemmer. A full Index and valuable Chronological Tables add greatly to the effectiveness of the work. For the benefit of students the price of these two finely printed and handsomely bound volumes has been kept unusually low.

TWO VOLUMES, DEMY OCTAVO, FIFTEEN SHILLINGS NET THE SET. POST. SIXPENCE.

MEN, NOT ANGELS

AND OTHER TALES TOLD TO GIRLS

By Katharine Tynan

"A VOLUME of stories for girls by Mrs Hinkson is always welcome. This one, however, will be thrice welcome, as the stories are Catholic. Variety is a note of them, for the scenes are laid in England, Ireland and France. They are one and all interesting and charming. We hope that those of our readers who are in search of a gift or prize book that is sure to please will not forget Men, not Angels. It is attractively produced, the type and paper being excellent."—Catholic Times.

"Few modern writers have given us more wholesome and more sympathetic character studies of the young girl heroine than Katharine Tynan. Most of these stories have a Roman Catholic setting, and their heroes and heroines are Saints and Sisters, Priests and Preachers. While they possess fictional attractiveness they are also endowed with wholesome and useful moral qualities." —Guardian.

THIRTY-ONE DAYS WITH OUR LADY

By Margaret M. Kennedy

PARENTS and others searching for a May book for little girls cannot fail to find all they desire in Miss Kennedy's Thirty-one Days with Our Lady. The author's previous book for children, The Holy Child Seen by His Saints, achieved a marked success, and she now offers to little girls the story of Our Lady's life from her birth to her glorious Assumption told in simple language. The work is divided into thirty-one chapters, each a sufficient and attractive reading for every day in the Month of May. The readers of the volume will appreciate also the seven illustrations which Miss Butt has specially drawn for this book.

WITH SEVEN ILLUSTRATIONS BY CICELY BUTT. CLOTH, TWO AND SIXPENCE NET.

THE FLOWER of the FIELD

By a Benedictine of Princethorpe

IN The Flower of the Field the author has collected pious legends which have gathered round Our Lady's life. Interwoven with these legends, interestingly retold, is the Scriptural narrative to which have been added appropriate meditations and reflections which reinforce an already strong appeal to Children of Mary and other Sodalists in search of a new book for the Mary-month.

THE GIANT TELLS

By Jehanne de la Villèsbrune

THIS is a little collection of picturesque Breton tales and legends, skilfully woven together, told by " The Giant " (who, as Jean de Tombelaine, had real existence), to the little son and daughter of his master; and it is the little girl who here recounts them for the delight of many others.

THE SHADOW OF PETER

By H. E. Hall, M.A.

"MOST heartily do we welcome new editions of two of the best known of all our modern apologetic works—Miss Anstice Baker's A Modern Pilgrim's Progress and Mr H. E. Hall's The Shadow of Peter, both published by Burns & Oates. Miss Baker's masterly and profound work is, of course, too well known to need further commendation from us; we need only set on record our pleasure at its continued demand. Mr Hall's work is, of course, of less varied scope, but, as our readers know, is not less thorough, and is as specially and perfectly fitted to meet the needs of good Anglicans, as Miss Baker's work of those whose difficulties lie further back. Mr Hall adds in his second edition some very useful new matter."—The Month.

CHEAP EDITIONS OF IMPORTANT BOOKS

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

By Canon McDermott Roe. With a Preface by Cardinal Vaughan

"THIS series is composed of a number of highly picturesque discourses on what ought to be the aim of all true Christians, the attainment of the Kingdom of God. Without being strictly allegorical, it presents the subject in a manner calculated to captivate the imagination of even the less intelligent."—Cork Examiner.

THE VALIANT WOMAN

A SERIES OF DISCOURSES INTENDED FOR THE USE OF WOMEN LIVING in the WORLD

By Archbishop Landriot

THESE famous instructions on the domestic duties of Christian women were addressed by Mgr Landriot when Bishop of La Rochelle to the Ladies of the Society of Charity established in his episcopal city. The translation, faithfully and eloquently made by Helena Lyons, had the approbation of the author, who was later Archbishop of Rheims.

Cardinal Mercier's Pastoral

NEVER before in the history of Christendom, it may well be thought, has a Pastoral taken such a hold on the world as the Patriotism and Endurance of Cardinal Mercier. From the hour of its suppression in Belgium and the restraint placed upon the Cardinal's freedom, its real life began. Two days after a copy of the original French edition had been smuggled into this country, Messrs. Burns and Oates had their translation prepared, their Device of the Diocese of Malines ready for the cover, the type set, advance proofs sent hot from the printers to the various newspapers, and, finally, a large edition printed, folded, cut, stitched, and on sale. And for many weeks afterwards the type had hardly a day of idleness. Besides the popular pamphlet at 2*d*., there is a charmingly produced edition, on large japon vellum, finely wrappered, and with a portrait of Cardinal Mercier, for 1*s*. net; and an edition at 2*d*. net of the original French version.

THE MISSAL FOR THE LAITY

HERE for the first time among Missals of our day is renewed the old traditions of beauty in liturgical printing. This Missal alone has its rubrics printed in the traditional colour—an advantage costly indeed for the publisher to procure, but much more than picturesque merely in the result. This is, moreover, despite its luxury of type, the only Missal of an easily pocketable size. The editing and arrangement, finally, leave nothing to be desired.
